ANNUAL SUMMARY

The June 1974 AIA survey shows a 5% increase in the number of helicopters operated in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico compared to the 1973 totals.

The expanding utilization of commercial helicopters, especially in banking, logging, construction, oil production and exploration is reflected in the 1974 total of 3,418 helicopters -- a 4% increase over 1973.

The 12% increase in the number of civil government agencies and the 18% increase in the number of civil government agency helicopters are evidence of the expanding use of helicopters in traffic patrol, law enforcement, highway ambulance patrol and rescue.

The continued growth in the number of helicopters that are serving the civilian population focuses even more attention on the continuing need for more public city-center, suburban and hospital heliports. Again in 1974, trapped victims of high-rise building fires were airlifted from burning rooftops by helicopter. This further dramatized the need for roof-top heliports when the tops of buildings are beyond the reach of ground fire-fighting equipment.

Here a 15-place Bell 212 Twin Jet transports busy executives up and over highway traffic, provides point-to-point travel from one plant heliport to another.

Here another "go-anywhere--land anywhere" helicopter, a Klondike Helicopter's FH-1100, lands on a Canadian mountain.

Mr. Cooper lands on his farm to inspect some of the famed Iowa corn.

Elliott Cooper's Bell JetRanger seems to be inspecting the troops as it comes in for a landing at Winnebago Industries Forest City, Iowa, manufacturer of homes on wheels.

Today's businessmen go all the way by air -- across the country in the company's business twin-jet airplane and from the airport to the plant's heliport in the company's twin-jet E0-105 helicopter.

A Vought Gazelle transports company officials to those hard to get to places.

Construction engineers land at the site in the company's Hughes 269A helicopter.

San Francisco Police Department Hughes 269A helicopter on patrol -- and over the city.

Person Helicopters, Inc., of Perkaskie, Pa., uses one of its Sikorsky
-411 helicopters to precision place an 85-foot wooden pole for the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company. The helicopter set eight poles in less than an hour.

In California, a Bell 47G helicopter saves time when mechanics from Cesare's Garage service trucks along Interstate 5. Owner Cesare Manzchi uses the helicopter mainly for "hot cargoes" -- goods that have to be at a certain point at a specific time whatever the cost.

On floats -- a helicopter proves an ideal platform for geological surveys -- over rivers and swamps -- and to find where the fish are biting. Here a Brantly lands on the water.

In Denver, Colorado, St. Anthony Hospital leases two Alouette III helicopters from Helicopters Unlimited to operate its Emergency Air Service. Here a patient arrives at the hospital's rooftop helipad.

An Oceanaire Helicopter Service Bell JetRanger II completes a water rescue, the start of a busy tour of duty for the men of "Chopper One." Oceanaire's Lupe Amaya did all of the actual flying for ABC-TV's police-action series.

A Los Angeles County Fire Department Bell JetRanger lands at site of auto accident. Quick evacuation by the ambulance helicopter saves lives when minutes really count.

A Hiller 12E helicopter on the job high in the Rockies.

AVALANCHE STOPPER...A workman pauses as a Bell Model 47 lifts a jet roof into position for installation. The line of jet roofs along the ridgetop should prevent the formation of dangerous ice cornices above California's Highway 88.

Long distance commuter -- Helen Jost, Whirly-Girl #139. One week she's patrolling power lines in her Bell 47J in New York State for five utility companies, as president of Kennebec Helicopters. Next week, she's in Louisiana, ferrying crews and sling load equipment to off-shore oil production platforms in the Gulf of Mexico for Petroleum Helicopters -- A Whirly-Girl First!

In Washington, D.C., Radio Station WWDC's Captain Dan, in between traffic reports, visits the area schools -- lands in the school yard and talks to his live and willingly captive audience about traffic safety. He was awarded the Helicopter Association of America's Captain Max Schumacher Memorial Award in 1973 for his unique public service involving the helicopter.

Pipeline work is a cinch for helicopters. Here a Petroleum Helicopter's Sikorsky slingloads a pipeline section for installation through a forest, across rugged terrain.

A Hughes 500 covers the waterfront.

Helicopters have been serving off-shore oil rigs for 25 years, moving crews, supplies, parts. The farther companies move off shore, the greater is their need for helicopters. Below, a Boeing Vertol BO-105C twin-jet helicopter serves as the daily "bus" for oil crews to an oil production platform in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Sikorsky Skycrane, <sup>(R)</sup> today's "logger," is proving cost effective and ecologically protective. Roads are not needed -- the helicopter can fly crews into forest areas to pick up and fly out timber cargoes, leaving the area free of scars and gashes. Here an Erickson Air-Crane Co.'s Skycrane <sup>(R)</sup> lifts out the logs.

In banking, time means money. Here a Philadelphia National Bank Bell JetRanger helicopter takes off from the Bank's Market Street rooftop heliport to pick up checks and drafts at some of the more than 68 branch banks. FNB receives over 350,000 checks a day by helicopter.
