A Fairchild Hiller turbine-powered FH-1100 ambulance helicopter, equipped with two inside litters, seat for medical attendant, plus pilot, lands near a highway accident.

A Sikorsky S-61 helicopter lifts a crashed car off the highway.

A Hughes 269A helicopter can be equipped with spray booms. It is estimated that one agricultural type helicopter can do the spray work of 3 fixed-wing airplanes.

A Sikorsky Sky-Crane heavy lift helicopter off-loads cargo from ship to shore.

Atlanta (Ga.) Citizens & Southern Bank uses 5-place, turbine-powered Bell JetRanger helicopters for daily pick-up of checks and drafts from its 30 branch banks. Where no heliport is available, a unique pole-pick-up is used. With a long metal hook, the plastic tube containing the deposits is lifted off a 60 feet high pole into the hovering helicopter.

In Niagara Falls, N.Y., Heussler Helicopter Corporation operates 3-place Bell 47-G helicopters for sightseeing, air taxi and charter flights from this elevated downtown heliport.

The AIA's Vertical Lift Aircraft Council 1969 survey shows an increase of 35 percent in the number of operators and 41 percent in the number of helicopters compared with the 1967 totals.

The largest increase in operators -- 40 percent -- was in the number of companies and executives that own and operate helicopters. These corporate users also show the largest increase in the number of helicopters operated -- an increase of 58 percent over the 1967 total.

The 27 percent increase in the number of civil government agencies using helicopters reflects the effective role of helicopters as the air arm for law enforcement -- for patrol, crime control and rescue.

This continuing growth in the civil use of rotary wing aircraft emphasizes the need for the establishment of public use city-center and hospital heliports.

Executives and Companies

President Nixon at the White House South Lawn heliport boards Helicopter No. 1, of the Presidential fleet "United States of America" helicopters, Sikorsky S-61's. They are flown by U.S. Army and Marine Corps pilots.

The Peoria (Illinois) Journal Star's Bell JetRanger, hangared in the newspaper's rooftop heliport, is ready in minutes for take-off to cover fast-breaking stories.

The Huey 500, a 5-place, turbine-powered helicopter, is used by modern industries for fast portal-to-portal transportation for company executives.

In St. Louis (Mo.), the Fred Weber Contractors Bell JetRanger helicopter lands at the job site.

An executive model of the Fairchild Hiller FH-1100, 5-place, turbine-powered helicopter, lands company executives at Dulles International Airport for connecting airline flights.

Philadelphia (Pa.) with its famous Go-Patrol helicopter is one of the more than 50 U.S. cities that have twice-a-day helicopter traffic patrol reports. Here the helicopter reports on traffic at the Army-Navy Game.

Government Agencies

Three Enstrom two-place helicopters and one Fairchild Hiller ambulance helicopter are operated by the New Jersey State Police to help handle the traffic congestion of the millions of motorists travelling through the state.

One of the Los Angeles Police Department's traffic copters — a Bell JetRanger — hovers over a speeding car.

The California Highway Patrol operates Fairchild Hiller FH-1100 helicopters. One shown on the ground is float-equipped for beach patrol and off-shore rescues.

A Hughes crime control copter gives an aerial report to a Police Department squad car.

Fairchild Hiller ambulance helicopters are being used for highway accident patrols and to transfer patients from community hospitals to medical centers for specialized treatment.

The U.S. Forest Service and city fire departments use helicopters to combat fires. Today the average hook and ladder ground equipment can't reach high-rise building fires. The helicopter can.

Helicopter Flight Schools

Nancy Smyth (Whirly-Girl #77) is secretary-pilot for Ronson Helicopters, Inc. of New Jersey where the N. J. State Police are now receiving helicopter pilot training.

Lauretta Foy (Whirly-Girl #46) is Chief Helicopter Flight Instructor at Long Beach (Cal.) Southland Helicopters, Inc., a leading helicopter flight school. She is also chairman of the FAA's Women Advisory Committee on Aviation.

Petroleum Helicopters, Inc, the world's largest commercial helicopter company, serves the off-shore oil rigs, provides heavy lift helicopters for construction jobs and operates a helicopter flight school.

Chicago (Illinois) Radio Station WGN provides daily traffic reports as a public service. The helicopter operates from the Station's heliport.

Page Shamburger, the 1969 winner of the Doris Mullen Whirly-Girls Scholarship, completed her helicopter flight training at South Carolina Helicopters, Inc. to become Whirly-Girl #142.

A helicopter is a real work horse on a ranch. The helicopter can do the work of 15 cowboys in herding cattle, patrolling fences and riding the range.

Sir Edmund Hillary plans a "climb" in a helicopter to Alaska's Juneau ice cap with pilot Nancy Livingston (Whirly-Girl #4) of Livingston Copters, Inc.
