ANNUAL SUMMARY

This 14th annual Directory of Helicopter Operators in the United States and Canada shows continuing growth patterns concerning the versatile helicopter.

Since 1963 the total number of operators has increased by 155.3 percent (2.7 percent during the period April 1972-April 1973), and during the same period the total number of helicopters operated increased by 207.3 percent (9.9 percent during the last year).

Last year the number of civil government agencies operating helicopters increased by 14. These agencies also showed the largest increase in the number of helicopters operated -- an increase of 78 (17 percent). This increase reflects the expanding role of the helicopter in traffic patrol, crime control and highway ambulance patrol and rescue.

In addition to the continuing need for more public city-center and suburban heliports and hospital heliports, recent high-rise building fires have dramatically demonstrated the need for roof-top heliports. In many cases, today's fire-fighting ground equipment can't reach the roof -- the helicopter can.

Helen Jost, Whirly-Girl #139, President of Kennebec Helicopters, Inc., Newburgh, New York, is the only girl to operate a commercial power line helicopter patrol service.
Congressman Kenneth J. Gray of Illinois uses a helicopter to visit constituents.

Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona is another Congressional helicopter pilot.

By land or sea or air, executive owner/pilot Al Bayer is ready with his 50 ft. coastal cruiser, his Hughes 300 Helicopter and his motorcycle (aboard, but not shown).

Today more and more banks find banking by helicopter to be faster and more efficient. In Philadelphia, for example, the Pennsylvania National and the Girard Banks use helicopters for daily transfer of checks and drafts.

The country’s Chief Executive is a major user of the helicopter. Here he boards one of the Presidential helicopters on the South Lawn of the White House. He may be headed for Camp David 30 minutes away, or for Andrews Air Force Base and a flight halfway around the world.
Margerite Myrick, Whirly-Girl #157, native of Switzerland, is now Knoxville, Tennessee's traffic copter pilot, where she and her husband Charles operate Columbus Helicopters.

In Petersburg, Alaska, South Coast Forest Products executives find the helicopter is the go-anywhere-land-anywhere way to travel.

In New Jersey, Ronson Helicopters, Inc., with its fleet of 11 helicopters provides all-the-way-by-air travel for businessmen, eliminating the drive to and from the airport.

1 Sikorsky S-51
The Ladies Auxiliary of California's Loma Linda University Medical Center purchased and equipped this ambulance helicopter -- A surplus Sikorsky S-55. Western Helicopters, Inc., maintains and operates the helicopter for emergency medical services.

In Oregon, Evergreen Helicopters, Inc.'s Bell 205 sprays 280 gallons per minute. Spray equipped helicopters are also used effectively by Mosquito Control Commission in coastal and swamp areas.

Kansas City is one of the more than 80 police departments operating helicopters for traffic patrol, crime control and rescue. Shown here one of the department's 6 Hughes helicopters.

With two-way radio, the squad car and overhead helicopter add another dimension to police patrol and surveillance. Shown here the Pasadena (Calif.) police Enstrom F-28A helicopter.
The Los Angeles Fire Department operates these five Bell Helicopters -- two two-place model 47's, a 5-place JetRanger, a 10-place 204B and the larger 15-place 205A.

Float-equipped Gold Coast Bell 47 helicopter operates from its own heliport on North Miami, Florida's Biscayne Boulevard.

Today in many states, rescue ambulance helicopters patrol the highways to transport accident victims to the hospital -- when minutes really count. Here a California Highway Patrol Fairchild Industries FH-1100 ambulance helicopter is on the scene.

Today more than 550 industries operate helicopters as modern executive transports. The helicopter shown here is a Vought five-place Gazelle with the shrouded tail rotor.

In Virginia, the Fairfax County police find their Enstrom F-28 helicopter especially useful in apprehending house burglars and escaped criminals.

Claudia Greico (Whirly-Girl #161) is a Flight Instructor at Las Vegas, Nevada. Recently she trained Cathy Jones, newest and youngest Whirly-Girl (#73).

The helping hand helicopter -- one Vought Lama five-place helicopter transfers another.

A mile offshore a Sikorsky Sky crane hovers 65 feet above freighter's hatch preparing to lift gondola for delivery to village ashore.

The Sikorsky S-58T -- a corporate transport or heavy lift workhorse -- shown here at work in a drill rig installation.
An Alouette III in the 50th state is operating as the flagship for Hawaii Helicopters International. This seven-place, turbine powered helicopter is used for sightseeing and industrial work around the Island.

SFO (San Francisco and Oakland Helicopter Airlines) operates four Sikorsky S-61's in scheduled airport-to-heliport service for airline passengers arriving and departing the Bay Area.

In Canada, Dominion's fleet of 34 helicopters provides a myriad of services, including flight training, as well as law enforcement, patrol and exploration. Shown here one of their 10 Bell JetRangers.

In Nova Scotia, the power commission operates a Hughes 500.
A Boeing Vertol BO-105C twin jet helicopter, operated by Petroleum Helicopters, Inc., is shown serving one of the more than 2,000 off-shore oil rigs in the Gulf of Mexico.
