Helicopters have been serving the off-shore oil industry for more than 25 years, moving crews, supplies, parts. The farther companies move off-shore, the greater is their need for helicopters. Here a Bell twin-engine 212 helicopter serves as the daily "bus" for oil crews to an oil production platform in the Gulf of Mexico.

ANNUAL SUMMARY

The November 1975 survey shows an 8.4% increase in the number of helicopters operated in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico, compared to the 1974 totals.

Business use of helicopters reached an all-time high during 1975 with 833 executives/companies operating 1,056 helicopters. These represent a 37% increase in owners and a 35.7% increase in the number of helicopters owned.

In addition to their expanding use in off-shore and land oil exploration and production, helicopters are proving cost-effective in mining, banking, logging and construction. There was a 7.4% increase in the number of commercial operators and a 2.3% decrease in the number of helicopters over 1974. This decrease is attributed to the shift toward the newer helicopters with greater range and payload.

The 37.4% increase in the number of civil government agencies and the 32.3% increase in the number of civil agency helicopters reflect the expanding and proved role of the helicopter in combatting crime, patrolling traffic, transporting highway accident victims and premature babies to hospitals and rescuing injured mountain climbers, drowning victims and lost children.

When the only way down is by helicopter. Here a Los Angeles County Sheriff Department's Sikorsky S-58 helicopter hovers ready to rescue the downed pilot trapped on an inaccessible mountain. Note his crashed airplane in the foreground.

The company's FH-1100 helicopter beats the highway traffic to meet the boss's trans-Atlantic flight at Dulles International Airport, Washington, D.C.
Heliport Consultant and Demonstration Pilot for Bell Helicopter Company, Van Nuys, Calif., Lauretta Foy is the International President of The Whirly-Girls, the organization of women helicopter pilots with 210 members in 13 countries.

The Bell Big Lifter -- the 214B helicopter -- demonstrates its capability of lifting more than 7,000 pounds.

One of SFO Helicopter Airlines, Inc., three Sikorsky S-61's transports over the new Emeryville (Calif.) Heliport. Note easy ground access and close proximity of the Holiday Inn. SFO Helicopters provides scheduled service between SFO International Airport and Bay area communities -- Emeryville, Marin County and Oakland.

In Missouri, one of St. Louis Helicopters' Sikorsky S-58's on a cost-effective construction job.
Horses and helicopters -- partners in crime control. Here a Texas Department of Public Safety Bell JetRanger is working with two Texas rangers on a kid-napping and double murder case in the hill country west of Austin.

New York Airways, Inc. operates four Sikorsky S-61 transport helicopters on scheduled service from the downtown Wall Street Heliport linking Kennedy, La Guardia and Newark Airports, as well as Morristown, New Jersey.
Here's one criminal who couldn't get away from the overhead police helicopter.

The Atlantic/Agusta A-109 eight-place, twin turbine transport.

An Aerospatiale Lama serves as an aerial platform for survey.
