The Helicopter Construction Tool. Power-line transmission towers are erected across mountains, rivers and ravines by helicopter. Here a Sikorsky S-58 does another "impossible" job, as it flies the top tower section in a sling load for precision placement by the waiting crew.

The 1976 AIA survey shows an 18.4 percent increase in the number of helicopters operated in the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada, compared to the 1975 totals.

For the second year, business use of helicopters in 1976 reached a new high, with 1,082 corporations/executives—an increase of 29.9 percent over 1975) operating 1,392 helicopters. This represents a 31.6 percent increase in the number of helicopters owned -- proof that the helicopter has become a cost-effective tool of industry, especially in mining, construction, banking, logging and off-shore and land oil exploration.

There was a 16.9 percent increase in the number of commercial operators and a 10.8 percent increase in the number of helicopters compared to 1975.

The number of civil government agencies operating helicopters increased by 20.8 percent and there was a 31.8 percent increase in the number of civil government agencies operating helicopters.

In 1976, the availability of military surplus helicopters for purchase by state and local governments is reflected in the increasing number of civil government agencies operating helicopters.

Today in metropolitan areas, the overhead traffic copter directs the office and homeward bound motorists, helps unsnarl traffic jams and can call for the helicopter ambulance to rescue highway accident victims. In Chicago, (Ill.) Executive Helicopter operates Station WGN's Enstrom helicopter.

Business executives boarding the new Sikorsky S-76 twin turbine short haul transport.
The Bell's new Model 222 is off and flying. Here the light twin turbine helicopter is shown with landing gear retracted.

A Brantly-Hynes Model B-2B -- equipped with floatation gear -- ready for water rescues or to land where the fish are biting.

The Long Island Railroad uses helicopters to patrol their commuter trains against vandalism. Here a Decair Bell 47 on the job.

In Mississippi, Dr. James Anderson checks cattle at the Animal Research Center. He and other busy administrators often go by helicopter to outlying stations of the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Experimentation Station system.

The Atlantic/Agusta A-109 eight-place, twin turbine transport.
New York Airways, on February 1st, will again provide scheduled helicopter service from the PanAm Building's rooftop heliport in downtown Manhattan to the area's three airports.

Helicopters save crops. The helicopter's rotor downwash, its ability to cover tight corners, to fly at low speeds, and reload at the site, make it a superb aerial applicator. Here the new Turbine Powered Hiller Ag Ship from Soloy Conversions.

A Bell 204-B, 10-place helicopter daily transports crews to and from oil rigs in the Gulf of Mexico.

A Bell 47 G on Power Line patrol.

Corporate Copters are good neighbors. Here the Gibson Trade Show Jet Ranger lands a heart patient at a Dallas (Tex.) hospital heliport.
